This opportunistic redevelopment is excessive and seeks to add up to 40% internal floorspace. We believe the addition of two storeys and mechanical housing on a ninth level will loom over Horselydown Lane and Courage Yard creating a loss of daylight and privacy, more noise, and overshadow and block the westerly and easterly outlook for many.

A canyon-like effect will be created on the south approach to the iconic Tower Bridge.

This excessive reconstruction will necessitate two years of noise, dust and disruption, with road restrictions in Horselydown Lane and lorries stacked along Gainsford Street.

The property sits within the Tower Bridge Conservation Area and the Local Setting Boundary of the Tower of London World Heritage Site.
